Property Tax Relief

2006 Session Report

Additional Property Tax RELIEF

At the start of the 2006 session of the Indiana General Assembly, property tax relief was identified as a priority by members of both parties. When the smoke cleared, we were able to provide some relief for homeowners.

This year, about 1.5 million homeowners will receive a one-time increase in the state homestead credit from 20 to 28 percent. This credit will provide around $100 million in property tax relief in 2006.

Rep. Moses In 2007, the state homestead deduction will increase from $35,000 to $45,000 for one year only. This relief will provide an additional $127 million in relief for homeowners.

Starting in 2008, the state will gradually phase in a cap on property tax bills at two percent of a home's value. This cap would apply to all classes of property in Indiana, starting in 2010.

While this relief is welcome, it still does not make up for the massive increases in local property taxes that were passed on to home and business owners through the biennial state budget approved in 2005 by the Republicans leading our state's government. At the time, that budget increased the burden on local property taxpayers to the tune of an estimated $850 million.

And that means you are still going to see your property taxes go up when you get your next tax bill. The time to have enacted true, lasting property tax relief was 2005, but nothing was done by those in charge.

Major Moves Moses votes NO on selling Toll Road

More than anything else, the 2006 session of the Indiana General Assembly will be remembered for Major Moves, the governor's program to sell the Indiana Toll Road for $3.8 billion to a foreign group for the next 75 years.

This proposal became law, despite public opposition at a level I have never seen before. In large numbers, the people of Indiana said they did not want a public asset built with their tax dollars handed over to a foreign corporation, which then will pocket all profits generated by the toll road for 75 years. I heard you and voted AGAINST the plan, but our concerns were not enough to change the minds of the majority of Republicans in control of the Indiana House and Senate.

Now that Major Moves has become law, what will happen in Indiana? From now until 2081, when you travel the Indiana Toll Road, your tolls will be sent overseas.

The governor says Indiana will begin work on around 200 road and bridge projects with the $3.8 billion received from the foreign investors. I believe the sale doesn't provide enough funding to pay for all of the Major Moves projects promised by the governor.

Northeast Indiana has nearly 16 percent of the population and road miles. But under the list of projects to be build, it gets only four to five percent of the projects. This means our monies will be spent in Indianapolis and along the Ohio River for bridges. We will get the Fort to Port highway, but we were going to get it anyway under the old plan without the Toll Road sale. The result is if all the other regions get the money, as is now presently planned, we will be cemented into an inferior location for decades to come.

The implications of Major Moves will be felt in Indiana for years to come. If anything, more time was needed to fully analyze the impact of Major Moves. I fear we will be finding out more and more disturbing details about it as time goes on.

Improvements to Education

Education remains one of the most important topics we address at the Indiana General Assembly, and the 2006 session saw several improvements, as much for what we didn't pass as what we did.

During the 2006 session, there was an attempt to move the ISTEP test from the fall to the spring of the school year. This move was opposed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Suellen Reed and others who felt the change was too costly and that it would not help in identifying students having problems and providing remediation for them. After much debate, it was decided to make ISTEP reforms the subject of a comprehensive study by the Indiana Department of Education.

Some good did result, such as new legislation reinstates Indiana's Mentor Teacher Program, which provides professional support to veteran teachers who help in professional development of younger colleagues. Another bill offers high school dropouts the chance to earn their diplomas through the Fast Track program.

Many legislators believe that the debate about when to give ISTEP tests was designed to divert discussion about the lack of sufficient funding for schools. The 2005 budget reduced funds for over 40% of Indiana schools. That is what we should have talked about!

A summary of new legislation

SEX OFFENDERS

A series of bills continue our state's efforts to crack down on sex offenders. The bills clarify the designation of "sexually violent predator," require sex offenders to wear GPS tracking devices, establish lifetime parole for these offenders, ban sex offenders' access to locations where children may be present, keep better track of sex offenders' whereabouts with the new DOC sex offender registry, and make the crime of human trafficking of a minor a felony.

MILITARY RELIEF FUND

We established the military relief fund to provide grants for Hoosiers whose family members have been called into duty since September 11, 2001. A portion of the money for the fund will be raised through the sale of a new Hoosier veteran license plate created through the bill.

DOMESTIC BATTERY

Persons guilty of domestic battery now face harsher penalties. New legislation makes domestic battery, including strangulation, a Class D felony if it is knowingly committed in the presence of a child under the age of 16 or if the offender has committed a previous substantially-related crime in Indiana.

EMERGENCY TELEPHONE NOTIFICATION

All counties in Indiana may now set up an emergency telephone notification system to warn Hoosiers in the event of an emergency or impending disaster.

FIREWORKS LAWS

Indiana residents can now launch fireworks on their own property, with certain restrictions. The bill authorizes the discharge of fireworks on personal property or in specially approved fireworks discharge areas and charges a 5 percent public safety fee for the retail sale of fireworks, which will go to the Indiana Department of Homeland Security for special training programs for public safety officials. I voted AGAINST this bill. I felt the extended hours to use fireworks would be disruptive to neighborhoods.
